Why Virtual Learning?

- ◆ The average student spends 7 hours per day with digital media on screens...
- ◆ Teens send and receive 3,339 texts each month...
- ◆ More than 1.5 million elementary and high school students have participated in online learning...

Summer Learning

Many of our students who are in need of summer credit or course recovery are already “online”, so the REAL Center brings learning to the students. There are many advantages to a virtual summer school. We have found that families work and cannot transport their students to our center or have planned family vacations during the scheduled course times. Students want to sleep late, spend time with their friends, and go to the pool or the mall!

Now students can take summer courses wherever they are, even if the family is on vacation. Without the restriction of specific time schedule, students can take courses any time during the day or evening.

The REAL Center is pleased to provide a wide variety of courses for middle and high school students.

Comparing the Generations...

Note: Data were collected in studies conducted by the George Marshall Applied Cognition Laboratory. These studies encompassed an estimated 3,000 respondents, who were asked how many hours per day they engaged in the following activities: being online, using a computer but not online, sending and receiving e-mail, using instant messaging or chat, talking on the telephone, texting, listening to music, playing video games, and watching television. Totals reflect hours of time spent in all activities, including some activities done simultaneously.

Plagiarism Policy

All students who register for courses with the REAL Center must sign a plagiarism policy verifying that all work completed is indeed their own work.

FINAL EXAM OPTIONS: Students may take the final exam at home or at the REAL Center, depending on district approval. If students come to the REAL Center, they must verify their identity with their school district student ID card.

Please call to set up your exam schedule!

There will be NO exceptions for the final exam!
